ANNEXATION OF MEXICO.

The filibustering talk in regard to the peninsula of Lower California is reaching the agitation which comes to the front periodically in reference to the annexation of the northern tier of Mexican states. Some of the American editors talk of the project as if all that is required is for the President of the United States to issue a proclamation declaring such Mexican territory as may be desirable the property of the United States, when the stars and stripes will be immediately floated from every public building, the eagle will float peacefully over the valleys and the mountains, and the people will at once become Yankees, leaving at their revolutionary slogan and their labor patriotism. Some of these fellows write as if America were a nation of thieves and highwaymen, and as if it were a thing to be proud of. They talk as if it were right for us to take what we want, regardless of the ownership, and as if those we lay hold upon would be delighted to be taken under our protecting wing.

It will not be denied that the drift of things is towards the absorption of the United States of a portion of Mexican territory. Americans are going into the border states of our sister republic by the hundreds, acquiring title to land, and devoting their energies to the development and utilization of the resources of the country. American capital is being largely invested in Mexico, where American enterprise is doing much for our neighbor. The American who goes south of the border line, while he lives under another flag, is none the less American than when his home was north of the Rio Grande, and his loyalty to the United States is just as intense as when he dwelt under the stars and stripes. His earnest desire is that the American republic will follow and take him in, and his influence is exercised in that direction. It is said that that influence is asserting itself in a growing desire for the annexation of the southern states, some of the most intelligent Mexicans gradually coming to the belief that it would be better for their country if it were incorporated in the stable and peaceful American union. When that sentiment shall become sufficiently widespread and pronounced, it will be time to talk seriously of annexation, not by war and conquest, but by the peaceful and satisfactory method of sale and purchase. This is the way in which the United States are in the habit of acquiring territory, there being in the method a sense of that justice so recently appreciated by our government, and the plan leaves no ugly consequences. It would not be much of a trick to run the boundary line three or four hundred miles south, and take in the strip of territory desired most by Americans. It would involve a short and sharp war, the loss of a few hundred lives and the expenditure of some millions of money, which we can spare. But the act would be followed by a sense of shame and dishonor which would continue with us through all time. The American government would never get over the thought that it had been guilty of brigandage. We believe that in the course of time the United States will extend not only over Lower California but over the entire northern tier of Mexican states. It seems inevitable that this will be so; but we do not believe the arrangement will be brought about by other than honorable methods, such as will be satisfactory to Mexico, and creditable to the American sense of uprightness. There will be no forcible annexation, such as some unworthy Americans are eager for, and filibustering expeditions will not be contemplated in the negotiations.

It is now announced that the actual construction of the Nicaragua canal will begin about the middle of this month. The work will be completed in the spring of '90.

CONGRESSMAN COX is going to put in the summer campaigning for the Democrats in Dakota and Montana. If he will come to Utah he will be given a warmer welcome than either of the territories named will extend to him.

SALT LAKE CITY.

Two years ago THE HERALD said the census of 1880 would show a population for Salt Lake City aggregating 40,000 souls. At the time some of our friends regarded the estimate as extravagant, saying we had placed the number too high by 5,000. They said that an increase of 70 per cent. in ten years would be extraordinary, and all that the most sanguine could expect. To-day THE HERALD is inclined to increase its estimate. If immigration shall continue during the next twelve months as it has during the past year, the census enumerators will record on the 1st of June, 1889, the names of 45,000 people who claim Salt Lake as their home and abiding place. The influx is steady. Every week brings additions to our permanent population. Every train fetches in its quota of those who come here to abide. There is no rush. There are none of the elements of a boom. But there is gradual growth, a steady increase, which is remarked by those who are away for only a few weeks at a time. The assessors also observe it in the many new names on their rolls, and the directory canvassers are surprised when they attempt to compare their lists with those in the last previous directories. The fact is proven in a most convincing manner by the new dwelling houses which are going up, the work of the builder being observed on every street and on nearly every block in the city. Contracts have been awarded already this spring for hundreds of houses of greater or less pretensions, and it is said that some of the brick-makers have sold the entire season's product of their yards. Another evidence of the growth of population is furnished in the reports of real estate sales. The number of these sales last month aggregated between three and four hundred, and the money paid amounted to nearly seven hundred thousand dollars. Very few of these sales were of large or valuable pieces of land. The great majority were of small lots and building sites, while there were practically no purchases for speculative purposes. In many instances the buyers are new-comers, men who have been in the city only a few weeks or months, and who liking the place have concluded to remain. If one will look over the field intelligently and in a disposition to be fair, he will say that THE HERALD's estimate of two years ago was under rather than above the facts. He will be convinced that Salt Lake is growing rapidly, and will make such a showing at the June, 1890, census as will astonish even our own people who have not taken account of what has been going on around them. We have passed the village period in our career, and are to-day a city in population as well as name.

CANADA WILL not drive out the American thieves who have gone there with their ill-gotten wealth, but will put up the bars against other thieves from this country. In other words, Canada doesn't believe in getting all she can, out does believe in holding on to all she gets.

SECRETARY BLAINE appeared at his office yesterday morning, "showing," as the telegraphic dispatch says, "no trace of his recent illness." This announcement will everywhere be received with more pleasure than regret, indeed, it will all be pleasure. Mr. BLAINE is a bitter partisan, but he is a mighty big man, and he is an American, of whom all Americans are proud. He is admired and appreciated in this country, and BLAINE has his share of them. It would be a sad loss to the Republican party, and almost as great a one to the republic, if the statesman were to pass away. His death would create a vacancy which could not readily be filled.

ALL A SHOW.

What a lot of nonsense there is in the diplomatic service! Yesterday Sir JULIAN PAENSCOFF, the new British minister, was introduced to President HARRISON. Sir JULIAN has been in Washington a couple of weeks, but could not see the President because Secretary BLAINE was sick and unable to officiate at the presentation. These things must be done according to a system, or they cannot be done at all. The minister had first to officially make the acquaintance of the secretary of state, whose duty and pleasure it then became to introduce him to the President. Then the last mentioned must welcome the stranger in a speech which is expected to consist largely of taffy for the English government for selecting so distinguished a person to represent it, and for the minister for having been chosen to represent so great and good a government. Then the foreigner must tell how much his country loves the republic in general and the President in particular. They then shake hands and are sworn brothers. This may not be the precise order of the business, but the show runs something in this line. All the time the principal actors regard the affair as a farce, and the people of America, at least, look upon the proceedings as a hollow humbug.

There is little love between the two countries, and none whatever between the representative officials. Sir JULIAN is here simply because Great Britain feared that the nominally friendly relations existing between the empire and the republic would be destroyed if the appointment of a successor to SACKVILLE were longer delayed. If HARRISON were to speak the truth, and utter the sentiment of his party he would not flatter PAENSCOFF or rush over England.

UTAH HAVING lived two months under a Republican administration without a change in a local federal office, and having had no trouble, what is the matter with going along with the old force and continuing this condition of peace and prosperity?

UNLESS PRESIDENT HARRISON gives Utah a surveyor-general before long, the mining men will feel like removing their claims over into one of the neighboring states or territories long enough to have them patented.

It is observed that only Republican papers are saying that CLEVELAND will not be in the presidential race of 1892. Grover and the Democrats are laying low.

A Panic in the Family. No wonder that a family is panic-stricken when one of its members is seized with a violent cough. In this country from inflammation of the throat or lungs to consumption or bronchitis, is but a short step. But mark the terrible consumption which follows a neglected or maltreated cough, cannot by any possibility take place if "Hale's Honey or Horehound and Tar" is promptly administered. This grand specific immediately quiets the irritation and soon restores the inflamed membranes and tissues of the throat and lungs to perfect soundness and vigor. Sold by all druggists. ASSEMBLY HALL LECTURE.

Mr. Grant's free prophetic lectures in the Assembly Hall, illustrated by his great historic chart, are attracting increased attention. They will be continued Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings (May 6, 8 and 10). Last evening a very attentive audience listened to his exposition of the prophecies relating to the fall of the temporal power of the papacy in 1570. Mr. Grant claims that even shows we are very near the close of the present dispensation. If a application of prophecy to the history of this world is marvellously correct.

Beauty

Is desired and admired by all. Among the things which may best be done to enhance personal beauty is the daily use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. No matter what the color of the hair, this preparation gives it a lustre and pliancy that adds greatly to its charm. Should the hair be thin, harsh, dry, or turning gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the color, bring out a new growth, and render the old soft and shiny. For keeping the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, there is no better preparation in the market.

"I am free to confess that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me that it is a genuine article. Its use has not only restored the hair of my wife and daughter to be Abundant and Glossy, but it has given my rather stunted mustache a respectable length and appearance."—R. Britton, Oakland, Ohio.

"My hair was coming out (without any assistance from my wife, either). I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, using only one bottle, and I now have as fine a head of hair as any one could wish for."—R. T. Schmitt, Dickinson, Tenn.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my family for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."—Benjamin M. Johnson, M. D., Thomas Hill, Mo.

"My hair was becoming harsh and dry, but after using half a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it grew black and glossy. I cannot express the joy and gratitude I feel."—Mabel C. Hardy, Delavan, Ill.
